Element Positioning

Element Position

The layout design of pictures is highly flexible. A layout design may contain multiple pictures or just a single picture. It can feature a full bleed design or function as a solitary element.
The utilization of pictures adheres to other layout design principles we have specified.
The following elements can be employed to create diverse types of layout designs:

· Proportion
· Full bleed
· Half bleed
· White space

Alignment and position: Pictures can be aligned with the grid. Nevertheless, in certain layout designs, the position can be modified to align the pictures with other elements in the layout design, such as text or graphic elements.

Full Bleed

Inside Grid

Half Bleed

The pictures only need to be aligned with other elements in the layout design. It is not necessary to precisely align all the edges with the grid.